"Charles Matthew Crocker, an American born painter, is a follower of no school or Master. His art is not painted from Nature or any external form, but is dictated by the subconscious. By conscious striving he has acquired a faculty with which he projects the color and form essential to the expression of Nature and self. Each canvas is dynamic and carries its own rate of vibration or motion and is therefore instinct with life. He is a painter of light and emotion. His art is Nature, plus mind."
